New 1936 Fords Are Now On Display

Retaining all the major advancements that marked the 1935 line, yet a more beautiful car, more comfortable to ride in, easier to handle, and more quiet in operation, the new Ford V-8 for 1936 is now on display at the local Pullian and Martin Motor Co.

A longer hood with new type louvers, restyled fenders and front end, together with smart, newly designed wheels all add their quota of beauty to the exterior of the car. The interior is much smarter looking too. Better insulation against road noises and improved ventilation make it even more comfortable for driver and passenger than its predecessor. Its ease of maneuverability has been increased 25 per cent due to improvements in the steering mechanism. Changes in transmission now provide silent action in all gears, materially increasing quietness of operation.

Particular attention has been paid to restyling in the 1936 model. Distinctive oroginality is revealed in the new treatment of the front end. Carried forward more than five inches, the top edge of the hood curves gracefully downward over the radiator grille. Toward the bottom, the grill takes the shape of a V.

Both front and rear fenders have been redesigned, with lines more streamlined, higher and longer at the front end than those of the 1935 V-8. The horns are mounted under the front fender apron out of sight, behind small grilles and below the headlamps on each side of the radiator.

Replacing the welded steel spoke wheels with new one piece drawn steel wheels provides wheels that are equally strong yet with a saving in weight of approximately five pounds on each. The wheel, commonly thought of, is virtually eliminated. Its entire centrr has been replaced by the brake drum, to which the rim is bolted close to the outer diameter. This rim has a spoke like construction that insures great rigidity and allows air circulation over the drum for more efficient cooling. Placing the hub cap in position completes the assembly. The new wheels are unusually good looking, adding beauty to the car as a whole, while the decrease in weight contributes even further to fine riding qualities built into the 1935 model.

Mechanical improvements introduce easier steering, effortless gear shifting, a still quieter transmission and better riding qualities.

Due to improvements in steering gear and front axle this year, a decrease of more than 25 per cent in steering effort has been accomplished. The steering gear ratio has been changed from 15 to 1 to 17 to 1. New anti friction roller bearings have replaced the former bronze bushings, reducing the friction and increasing the efficiency of the unit. A change in the right hand spindle of the front axle is a further move toward easier steering. The point where the drag link connects is moved half an inch further from the king pin, increasing the leverage exerted on the front wheels when steering.

As in 1935, the same efficient mechanical brakes, the type of braking system used on many of the world's costliest cars and on most racing cars, are used to give dependability and positive action. The total braking surface is exceptionally large, 186 square inches.

Transportion gears are all, not only in the two upper ranges but in the low and reverse range as well, of the helical type in the new V-8's. This synchronized transmission means smooth, silent shifting. The gears are matched in sets and as further assurance of quietness, the second gears are highly burnished.

Colorful FRUIT SALADS Provide a "Lift"

BRIGHT warm colors do things for us when autumn rolls around. They back up our spirits for chilly days to come—a paran inheritance perhaps. Nature knows about that and weaves outof-doors a flaming tapestry to flaunt in the face of October winds. Indoors, we light a log-fire and candles which catch the highlights in our warmer rugs and draperies. It's a cozy sort of comfort.

Friends drop in—for a game, for a chat, or just to be companionable over the knitting needles while are wearing bright, warm winter togs. And what have you? What have you to serve for these pleasant chatty moments, when there's no time to fuss over foods?

We Nominate Salads

If you're a good pagan, you know how to put bright warm colors and delicious exhilarating flavors into fruit salads. Pagans weren't salad fans, so far as we know, but it is recorded that they did worship the harvest goddess. They heaped up red and gold and russet fruits and no doubt mingled them for the sheer glory of bright color and glowing flavor.

Autumn salads, gay with the gold of peaches, the amber of pineapple and the red of tomato, can be quickly made in the morning, put away in your refrigerator all ready to emerge for lunch eon, tea—or saved for dinner if there is no call for them to be served sooner. Experiment—play with some of the new colorful salads, and see how much zest they add to your autumn menus.

For Example

Jellied Pineapple and Peach Salad: Dissolve one package of lemon jello in one cup boiling water and add one-half cup of canned peach syrup and one-half cup of canned pineapple syrup. When cold and ready to set, add one cup of diced canned peaches and one cup of drained crushed pineapple. Add one-half cup chopped nuts and one-half cup chopped dates and mold as desired. Serve cold on crisp lettuce with mayonnaise. Serves eight.

Tulip Salad: Polish eight medium-size apples having bright red skins. Cut a slice from stem ends and scoop out the centers. Now cut down in wide points to represent tulip petals. Mix one-half cup diced apple from the centers, one cup diced canned pears, three-fourths cup diced celery and three-fourths cup chopped salted almonds. Moisten well with mayonnaise. Fill the tulips with this and set in nests of lettuce. This serves eight persons.

Still More Fruits

Pear and Tomato Salad: Slice chilled ripe tomatoes and place one slice in each of eight individual nests of lettuce. Place half of a canned pear on top of each, having the cut side of the pear up. Mix one cream cheese with three tablespoons chili sauce and pile in the pear cavities. Garnish with strips of canned pimiento and serve with either mayonnaise or French dressing. Serves eight.

Banana Boat Salad: Cut bananas in halves lengthwise and scoop out the centers. Fill the cavities with a mixture of diced pineapple slices and chopped black walnuts moistened with mayonnaise. Garnish with several maraschino cherries which have been dipped in mayonnaise and then rolled in canned moist coconnut.

Fruit Salad Dressing: Mix together two tablespoons lemon juice, six tablespoons olive oil, two tablespoons bottled lime juice, two tablespoons confectioner's sugar, salt and pepper to taste, a little paprika and a few grains of mustard. Shake until emulsified.

GIVE'M A HAND TUESDAY

The Times Virginian has on many occasions in the past taken the opportunity in these columns to laud the individual and collective efficiency and public service of the county officials of Appomattox county. In these columns we have repeatedly stated that no county in the state had better all round officers than Appomattox.

Taken one by one, they are men of ability, education, trustworthiness and honesty to the highest degree. We have stated on numerous occasions that the success of Appomattox county is the evidence of that statement in the sound management of the affairs of the county. Our county has no bonded indebtedness; operates on a balanced budget; constantly makes forward looking physical advances, and maintains its offices in a businesslike manner. We are not among the leading counties of the state in size, but recognize no peer in efficiency.

We make this statement again as a preface to a request.

Tuesday, November 5, is election day. None of the county officers has opposition for reelection. However, we urge and request all of the eligible voters of the county to go out next Tuesday and cast a vote of confidence and approval for the capable and efficient incumbents.

Their individual and collective records deserve a unanimous show of approbation at the polls.

NOTHING CAN STOP AMERICA

Injecting that optimistic note into the Forum of Current Problems sponsored by the New York Herald Tribune, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. president of the General Motors Corporation, declared that "America today is ready to go." Suiting deeds to words, he said, "It is this belief that leads General Motors to spend a sum in excess of $50,000,000 in preparation for the opportunities of tomorrow."

"The depression has now been substantially liquidated throughout the world," Mr. Sloan continued. "I am sure that we are about to liquidate much of the thinking and action related to it. I rest my case with full confidence in the belief that what the people of this country want above everything else is an opportunity to work and to accomplish; to recoup their losses, the results of the tidal wave of deflation which engulfed us; to get back where they were.

"We like prosperity. We want 'something different' only to insure ourselves against another depression. We want a rising standard of living. As returning prosperity becomes more widespread, let us definitely count upon a realignment of government economic policy, in the direction of accelerating father than retarding industrial progress. I believe this because no other position will, or should be tolerated. That is why I repeat, 'Nothing can stop America.'"

DO YOU REMEMBER?

One of the cherished memories of Appomattox is the [illegible] present older generation should be that of the old [illegible] cellar.

Therin was the storehouse of the home, the protection against the privations of winter, a larder that always served up good wholesome food for the table.

There was a barrel of salt pork, endless crocks of pickle, at least two stores of pickled pig's feet, jars of preserves, every variety of jams and preserves, a barrel of vinegar, sorghum, bins or barrels of potatoes and apples and shelves of canned goods. There were dried apples, dried butterbeans and navy beans. The family kept a winter's supply of sausage, hams, shoulders, lard, meal, flour, grits, sugar, salt, and coffee. My, my, what a delight the thoroughness with which the family stocked in supplies.

We moderns live one day at a time. The ease with which we can shop for the table from the modern store has wrought a change.

Were the store supplies cut off, we'd starve in a fortnight.
